Dear Picadome Family,

As winter approaches, so does the chance of NTI (Non Traditional Instruction) days. These days are used when school buildings are closed, but students participate in learning at home. This counts as a school day and does not need to be made up or added to the calendar. Students use Chromebooks to complete lessons virtually. More information can be found at <https://www.fcps.net/weather>.

In situations where it is possible that an NTI day may be called, students will be sent home with Chromebooks. They will NOT be sent home daily.

Students will use Google Classroom to complete lessons on an NTI weather day, and assignments will be posted by 8:30 am. Teachers and staff will have open office hours via Google Classroom from 8:30 - 10:30 am. During this time, they will be available to help students with questions and assignments as needed.

Teachers will be discussing the expectations with students so they are familiar with using Google Classroom. In the case of Kindergarten, they will be provided paper copies of assignments, in addition to having them available on Google Classroom.

Families can find additional information about logging in, contacting teachers or the Technology Help Desk at <https://www.fcps.net/picnti>

If students are unable to participate in these assignments, they will have three days from when we return to school to complete them. Your student's teacher will be sending home login information and an overview of the class resources/information.

If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact me.
