

Melvin J. Brown, Ed.D.

“Position the school district to confront the challenges that our students face each day and to provide the supports that enable them to conquer those obstacles”

Since 2017, Melvin Brown has served as the superintendent of Reynoldsburg City Schools, a district with 7,300 students in the metropolitan area of Columbus, Ohio. Prior to this role, he was associate superintendent at Prince William County Public Schools in Virginia, a district of 89,000 students and a county population of 400,000.

While at Reynoldsburg, Brown worked diligently to address district inequities in high school programming, including Advanced Placement and College Credit Plus enrollment. In his 22 years of school administrative experience, he has served as a deputy superintendent and director of human resources in Cuyahoga Falls City Schools, as regional vice president for an education company, and as an elementary and high school principal, a coach, a supervisor of multicultural education, and a teacher.

Brown holds a Doctor of Education in educational studies and educational administration from The Ohio State University; a Master of Arts in educational administration and supervision from Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, Virginia; and a Bachelor of Arts in English from James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Virginia.
